WAS REV. MR. MYERS SHOT AT?

Brooklyn Police Inclined to Doubt that He Was.

Details were exposed this morning as to whether or not a murderous attack was made on the life of Rev. Cortlandt Myers of the First Baptist Church, on account of his stand against the Democratic ring that is in control of the city.

Mr. Myers lives at 319 St. Marks' avenue, Mrs. Myers' home, and was shot after 7 o'clock last evening to prove to his congregation in the Academy of Music, where services have been held every evening since the shooting.

The man was arrested at 8:30 last night.

He had been shot at a few blocks away from Mrs. Myers' home, and there was a shower of glass.

Rev. Mr. Parsons, his husband's secretary, was gone through the night, and when he returned at 8 o'clock this morning he found that his wife was still alive.

At the same time, Dr. Gay, a surgeon, was also struck by the bullet.

Mr. Myers' condition is dangerous, and he is not expected to live.

The police disclosed the story, Capt. Early

McNamee, commanding the 14th Precinct, reported to the Doctor for personal consideration.

Referring to the threatening letter received yesterday, Capt. Parsons said:

"I am not afraid to admit that they are private individuals employed to follow him about." Dr. Parkhurst said, "no, but I have a regular bodyguard, and I don't think it will do me any good to leave the house alone, but would have his agents or personal friends with him."

The police advised the Doctor to go to his office to discuss the matter further.

CAR WINDOW BROKEN.

About 7 P.M., as car 116 of the Plaza, which connects the Plaza Hotel with the Bowery, was driving along the street, a bullet passed through a small bullet hole in the window, shattering the glass.

Rev. Mr. Parsons, who was in the car, was unable to learn who shot the bullet.

The bullet went through the window, and the glass was broken.

Charles Anderson, twenty-three years old, a drummer, living at 29 West Forty-third street, has had an experience that is likely to make him a temperance advocate for the remainder of his days.
